The fame Subject continued. : HixP these imperfect sketches, which we have given of the rank and condition of women, we are sorry to say, that it was long before we found them getting into possession of the common rights of mankind; that at present, in more than one quarter of the globe, they are the most abject slaves; and in much more than another, perpetual prisoners: while it is only in that little corner of it, called Europe, that they possess the consequence to which they seem entitled by nature, in the scale of intelligent beings. It is, therefore, with pleasure we now arrive at that part of our history, which leads us to consider their condition in polished and civil society; a condition almost in every particular, directly the reverse of what we have depicted in the last chapter. Treatment But though the fair sex are, in Europe, in Europe, commonly treated with affection and indulgence, which in other countries they are either quite strangers to, or only enjoy on a few particular occasions; yet, as all Europe is not equally cultivated in manners, the condition of women is not in every part of it equally eligible. Russia, which we consider as an European nation, though comprehending in its the Russian dominions a part of Asia, has only begun a few years ago to assume the polish of the Europeans; and is as yet...
