It is the history of life as it is ever springing into being, ever handed on from one individual to another, gathering the vigour of many ages. Men are not solitary units whose history must be a collection of independent chapters, but they are a long line of heirs, each generation of whom inherits the mental wealth of its predecessors, and may squander the treasures or may multiply them many times. Students of merely material organisms have begun in these later days to wonder whether the Creator s plan for filling this world with life may not include some law ordaining that one generation shall hand down to its successor a more highly developed material constitution than it received from its predecessor. Such a hypothesis is but a tardy reflection of the laws which psychologists have known for many centuries. For it is a very old doctrine, and a truth long known, that souls advance in refinement, in adaptations, and in adaptability. We may hand down to our children a higher spiritual organism than we received from our fathers. Now, as the subjective organism may advance, so also may objective spiritual possessions be increased. The child grows daily more familiar with the intellectual possessions of the father, with the wealth of knowledge which the father gained by hard toil. The child may inherit all this wealth more easily and surely...
