

The Computerised Lawyer

By Amanda Hoey

Springer Nov 1997, 1997. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 235x155x20 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Titel. Neuware - This second edition of this work demonstrates how substantially the field of computers and law has moved. In the first edition, some 78 pages were given over to the description of hardware and software description - almost an 'introduction to computing' for lawyers. Now, in this edition, the general expertise which exists amongst lawyers and the availability of good, easily assimilated information concerning the new technologies allows us to minimise this kind of material and move over to more substantive issues. Students no longer have to be told where the 'return' key is, and lawyers are aware of, for example, practice management software. Not only is the general level of understanding greater, but the computer itself has substantially developed, partly through becoming more powerful for less cost, and partly through the communications revolution known as the 'Internet'. This has allowed us to develop areas of the first edition which were not looked at due to space reasons: the result is a completely different book. The preface to the first introduction made mention of the negative view which law teachers generally had of the role of computers and law within the curriculum. This has changed drastically and it is now almost universally...
