Edolphus Towns (chairman of the subcommittee) presiding. Present: Representatives Edolphus Towns and Steven Schiff. Also present: J. Allen Hill, professional staff member; Martine M.DiCroce, clerk; and Martha B.Morgan, minority professional st, Committee on Government Operations. Opening Statement Of Chairman Towns Mr. Towns. I call this hearing to order. Today, the Subcommittee on Human Resources and Intergovernmental Relations looks at minority women and breast cancer. Before we begin, I want to acknowledge that this is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, and welcome our visitors here today. I know that some of you are breast cancer survivors, and I want to applaud you for your courage. Breast cancer is survivable, despite our concern today with mortality. One of the keys for survival is early detection. There is one message I know both the subcommittee and our witnesses want everyone to hear today, and that is, women should be active in consulting their physicians on the best ways to get regular screening. Don t be shy. The life you will save is your own. A study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association last Wednesday concludes: From this analysis, it is evident that reducing the survival disadvantage for black women with breast cancer is most likely to be achieved through strategies aimed at early recognition of disease. We should emphasize community educational efforts, improvement in access to primary...
